SHC Nursing Home Ranked Among Best in US

[Cuba City, WI] On any given day, about 80 people are living at Southwest Health Center Nursing Home in Cuba City. For every one of them—and for all of their extended family members—the quality of care in that facility matters more than almost anything in their lives. They can all rest a little easier knowing SHC Nursing Home was recently recognized as among the best nursing homes in America by US News and World Report.

Each year, US News examines data submitted by nursing homes throughout the 50 states and ranks facilities accordingly. Their goal is to provide readers recognized, authoritative information and clear, objective rankings to help them make informed decisions when selecting nursing home care. Using data provided by the Federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), US News identifies the top nursing homes in the nation. For their rankings of America's Best Nursing Homes, US News reviews the data in three categories: health inspections, nursing staffing and quality measures.

"We're proud to be one of America's Best Nursing Homes," says SHC Nursing Home Administrator Lisa Tranel. "Our team is passionate about providing the best possible care, and we all understand how important our work is to the people we serve. We're here for them."

CMS also analyzes information on all nursing homes enrolled in Medicare or Medicaid, and facilities are then ranked by CMS with ratings from one to five stars overall. In each of the past three years, SHC Nursing Home has received a five star distinction.
